

NOWACTUALLY

Fact Sheet

Why Outsource Your HR?

For many businesses, HR is broad, complex, and expensive to maintain an in-house senior HR personnel. By outsourcing your HR function, you would benefit from having a team of HR experts with different qualifications and experience in various industries at a fraction of the cost of employing a full-time inhouse HR person.

Management of Risk

- Minimisation of risk to your business
- Staying up to date on employment law and legislation changes both Federal and State based
- Implement compliance and best practice standards
- Ensure your business complies with these laws to avoid expensive claims brought on by employees

Productivity

An efficient and productive workplace is vital for the survival of business. We can ensure managers spend less time researching an answer or questioning the best approach by providing timely solutions. This will mean more time is focused on building a successful business knowing the HR element is managed effectively.

Financial Efficiency

We assist in the reduction of the cost of maintaining nonrevenue-generating back-office expenditures. Benefit from a team of HR experts who have the qualifications and many years of experience within many different industries without the stress of having to employ us on a fulltime basis. Benefit from our multiple services propositions being ad-hoc, project or retained service to suit your required needs and budgets. Additional benefits you gain by outsourcing your HR services is that we become an extension to your team by offering a personalised service, work towards your set goals and find the most cost effective, commercially sound outcomes to suit your needs.

Peace of Mind

The Australian employment landscape is ever changing, it is one of the most complex and intricate pieces of legislation in the world.

At Now Actually we aim to:

- Make it simple and understandable for busy business owners
- Have exposure to a range of industries and businesses that ensures we are demonstrating best practice
- Our innovative nature means we are current and ever evolving to keep up with the changes

Our practices encourage collaboration with a range of other professional services which means we are not only considering the HR implications but of the overall business impacts.